
Axia Technology Partners Develops Channel Services Software to Improve Business Tracking and Workflow

Axia Technology Partners, a leading national provider of converged IP services, today announces the launch of Axia Channel Services (ACS). ACS provides turn-key implementation software that drastically improves operating efficiencies for channel partners, agents and value added resellers.

ACS is a must-have for channel partners or companies looking to create or strengthen workflow management, sales quoting, commissions, proposal generation, tracking tools, product and service invoice order operations, billing, tax filing, and more. Each of these elements are available for purchase individually or as a bundle.

“We are always seeking new ways to improve operational inefficiencies for clients,” said Josh Ross, co-founder and managing partner at Axia Technology Partners. “We are thrilled to introduce ACS as part of the Axia brand of services. The system provides easy-to-use operational management tools that revolutionize business workflow, which we believe can improve the bottom line. We utilized the software for several years, and after much encouragement from our existing channel base, we decided to make it available to other businesses.”

Axia provides converged IP services with broad and industry-leading service offerings. The company maintains a national footprint by way of its interconnected networks and has established peering arrangements with 29 of the nation’s largest backbones. With its national central office topology and network interconnects, Axia has become a market leader in delivering IP services nationwide.

Axia’s current client base encompasses many municipals, hospitals, power companies and corporations ranging from 5-2500 employees all across the nation.
