

AXIA Technology Partners Continues Andretti Partnership

By Aaron Bearden - February 15, 2016

Photo: Adam Warner / FIA Formula E / LAT

After a successful partnership in years past in the Verizon IndyCar Series, Axia Technology Partners and Andretti Autosport have decided to continue their relations.

The two companies will work together globally, with efforts in Red Bull Global Rallycross and the all-electric FIA Formula E Championship.

“When racing around the world, it’s important for our staff and teams to be able to communicate seamlessly,” said team owner Michael Andretti. “AxiaTP has provided us with a proven successful solution that keeps all of our racing efforts moving toward success.”

The company’s Kerauno software platform is used by Andretti for a smooth workflow in internal communications.

“We are excited about continuing our partnership with Andretti Autosport and providing the Kerauno software platform to power their business,” said AxiaTP owner Josh Ross.

Both based out of Indiana, AxiaTP and Andretti have worked together since 2012, when the two collaborated to create a commercial for the Indianapolis 500.

Aaron Bearden

Aaron Bearden is a contributor to The Apex, Frontstretch, and Speed51. He covers everything from NASCAR to Formula E, and is responsible for the creation of the highly-popular IndyCar Power Rankings on WFOpenWheel.