AxiaTP Managing Partner, Josh Ross, to Speak at Technology Solutions Expo 2016

Indianapolis, IN – (Jan. 6, 2016) – Josh Ross, Owner and Managing Partner of Axia Technology Partners, will speak on the subject of IP technology trends at Technology Solutions Expo 2016 in Indianapolis on January 19, 2016.

With the evolution of cloud computing, Web 3.0, and IoT in the corporate landscape, companies need to continually assess the core technologies that drive their business workflows. All too often, businesses neglect their underlying IP technologies when making decisions to add new services such as VoIP phones, Unified Communications, or even something as simple as updating to a new productivity suite like Office 365 that relies on always-on cloud connectivity for optimal performance.

“As companies add new people and services, they don’t always take the time to evaluate the affect on their IP infrastructure,” said Josh Ross. “I’m hoping that through this talk I can provide information to help business owners understand the foundational IP technologies that power everything from communication to data transfer to their web presence.”

Following his talk, Mr. Ross will be available for a one-hour Q&A session where attendees can drill deeper to get answers to specific technology questions. In addition, attendees can visit AxiaTP’s booth on the exhibit floor to learn more about IP-driven products and services including business Internet, VoIP phone service, and Unified Communications solutions.

Hosted by Sensory Technologies, Technology Solutions Expo 2016 is Indy’s biggest technology event featuring the industry’s leading manufacturers, and informational sessions about the hottest industry topics, trends, and business applications. The event takes place at the Crown Plaza in downtown Indianapolis on January 19, 2016. The event is free, but registration is required.
